

Frodsham Laser Clinic

WHEN Jan Williams underwent a kidney transplant she knew it would be the start of a new life.

What she hadn't reckoned on was it being the start of a new business too - and one which would help other women to tackle a topic still almost too taboo to talk about.

"Unwanted hair in women is a huge issue but it's a hidden one. People just don't discuss it," says Jan, who began to develop unwanted hair as a result of the drugs she had to take for her kidney condition.

"But it can affect every area of your life. It can lead to depression and wanting to hide away from the world."

Jan has set up Frodsham Laser Clinic. She is offering treatment using a Class 4 laser - one of the most powerful available - and able to remove hair from any part of the body. She offers treatment for both men and women and sessions cost around £55 each.

"I wanted to offer somewhere where women will feel comfortable; somewhere that's private and discreet but friendly, too.

"It's such a hard thing to walk into a clinic in the first place and discuss something so personal, but I understand how my clients feel.

"I've been there and come out the other side."
